Post ‘bragging rights’ tourney winding down

Three ongoing events will close cup competition

By Sgt. Cullen James
Scout Staff

Fort Huachuca’s 2000 Commander’s Cup Tournament is nearing a close, but there’s still time to root for your unit team, according to George Thompson, post sport office.

Three events are still ongoing — golf, softball and track and field — before the post “A” and “AA” league champions are determined. Golf was supposed to end Saturday in its championship tourney, but it was rained out. “Some golfers still have to finish up,” said Thompson.

Track and field started Tuesday and barring inclement weather, will finish tonight. Softball will close the Commander’s Cup season.

Last year the 305th Military Intelligence Battalion swept the cup, with Company E, 305th taking the “AA” league championship and Company C, 305th topping the “A” league. Currently, Company E, 305th leads the way again in “AA” league play with 650 total points; however, in “A” league play, 19th Signal Company is topping the charts with 590 points.

Which league a unit is placed into is determined at the start of the Commander’s Cup sport season in September. The Sports Office receives an official strength report from the Military Personnel Office and designates units “A” or “AA.” Single A units have 234 or less soldiers assigned and double A units have 235 or more. Once assigned to a league a unit will not be moved.

“A lot of units start the season with 235 or more soldiers, but in the middle of the season they’re down to 150 or something,” said Michelle Kimsey, post Sports Office. “They complain that they’re playing in double A, but I can’t move them in the middle of a season. It’s impossible to keep points that way.”

“But this doesn’t mean a double A team is any better than single A,” she added. “It just means they have more players to choose from. I’ve seen single A teams spank double A teams in fun games and such.”

The Commander’s Cup Tournament series is comprised of the following sports: bowling, cross-country, flag football, basketball, racquetball, volleyball, golf, track and field, and softball. Units also receive points for attending monthly Athletic and Recreation meetings. The meeting are held the first Wednesday of every month during the sports season, second Wed. in January. The meeting put out information about the sports programs to unit representatives, and the units receive 25 points just for showing up.

Road races, formerly cross-country, and flag football kick off the Commander’s Cup season at the end of September, so the sports season runs the fiscal year.

Softball games are played at various fields throughout post. Contact your unit softball contact to find out where your team will be playing next. Track and field events are held at the Barnes Field House track.

Army pentathlete claims No. 1 world rank, prepares for Sydney

By Marcia L. Klein
CFSC Public Affairs

ALEXANDRIA, Va. - With less than 100 days to go until the 2000 Summer Olympic Games, Spc. Chad Senior may be in Pesaro, Italy, but his mind's in Sydney.

"Right now I'm just training solely for the Olympics. I'm not really resting or focusing on the world championships too much, because ... the Olympics are what really matter," Senior said even as he prepared to leave for the Modern Pentathlon World Championships in Pesaro June 13-18.

Senior has already qualified for September's Olympic Games and is ranked No. 1 in the world in the five-sport event. Pretty impressive for a 25-year-old who began the sport just three years ago and almost gave it up last year.

"At the end of last season, things weren't going as well as I thought they should and I was really frustrated with the sport," Senior said. "I was ready to switch to the triathlon ... and I told myself to just try to have fun with [the pentathlon] and see how next season goes and I kind of relaxed and had a lot more fun with the sport."

The fun approach has been successful so far for Senior, who was the first American ever to win the individual gold at the Modern Pentathlon World Cup in Mexico City, Mexico, on his way to qualifying for the Olympics.

The modern pentathlon requires athletes to excel in five disciplines: swimming, cross country running, equestrian show jumping, fencing and pistol shooting. Senior works long days, every day, in his attempt to be the first American ever to earn gold in the Olympic pentathlon.

"I swim in the morning, take a half hour for breakfast, then I go ride, then go straight to the track. After lunch I fence and shoot," said Senior, who trains at the National Modern Pentathlon Training Center at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas, and at the Army's World Class Athlete Program training facility in Denver, Colo. It's by design, too, that Senior is training for the Olympics as an active-duty soldier.

"I thought I could either do it on my own, or for the Army," he said when asked why he decided to compete as a member of the Army's WCAP. "If I did it on my own, all I'd have after the Olympics is four years of training as an athlete. Being in the Army helps your future ... I think serving in the Army is certainly an admirable quality and that's primarily the reason I did it."

Senior has a lock right now as one of the two U.S. pentathletes going to the Olympics. It's possible another Army World Class Athlete could join him at Sydney. To do so, Capt. Jim Gregory needs to win this week in Pesaro, and move ahead of American Velizar Iliev, the current U.S. National Champion and a 1999 Pan American gold medallist. Gregory was the runner up in the U.S. Nationals and is currently ranked fourth in the U.S.

While the pressure is off Senior at the world championships, his No. 1 ranking has increased the pressure as September draws closer.

"I would rather everyone keep overlooking me at the Olympics and kind of take for granted that they're going to beat me," he said. "If you're the dark horse it's a lot easier to pull off the upset, I think. Whatever happens, I want to finish the day feeling like I did everything I could. ... I think I'll be ready when I get there. I just hope I don't succumb to the pressure."

If he maintains the success he's had all year, pressure notwithstanding, Senior could be the first pentathlete in the 90 years Americans have competed in the sport to earn the elusive Olympic gold.

The U.S. Army Community and Family Support Center will provide constant coverage of Senior and other Army athletes at this year's Summer Games in Sydney, Australia. Log on to www.armymwr.com ("World Class Athletes") photos and information about the Army's WCAP Olympians and Olympic hopefuls.

Soccer summer camp set

The Sierra Vista Soccer Club will hold its annual soccer camp July 10-13 on D Field, next to the tennis courts past the City Library. The camp is open to all youth of Sierra Vista, Fort Huachuca and the surrounding areas, aged 5 to teen.

The camp is broken into two parts, with the morning session open to youth, ages 5-9, from 8-10 a.m. The evening session, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., is open to all youth, age 10 and over.

All campers are advised to bring a soccer ball, a water bottle, shin guards and plenty of sunscreen. Flyers are available at the Oscar Yrun Community Center, Big Five Sporting Goods, the Fort Huachuca Youth Center, Barnes Field House and Eifler Gymnasium.

The cost of the camp is $50, and includes a T-shirt. For information, call Rene S. Villalva at 452-8814.

Food, fun at SV YC

The Sierra Vista Parks and Leisure's Youth Center is holding a Food and Fun Day 1-3 p.m. Saturday. The cost is only $1 per person. The great cool desert to be made is root beer floats.

Call 458-7922 for further information.

A&C at YC

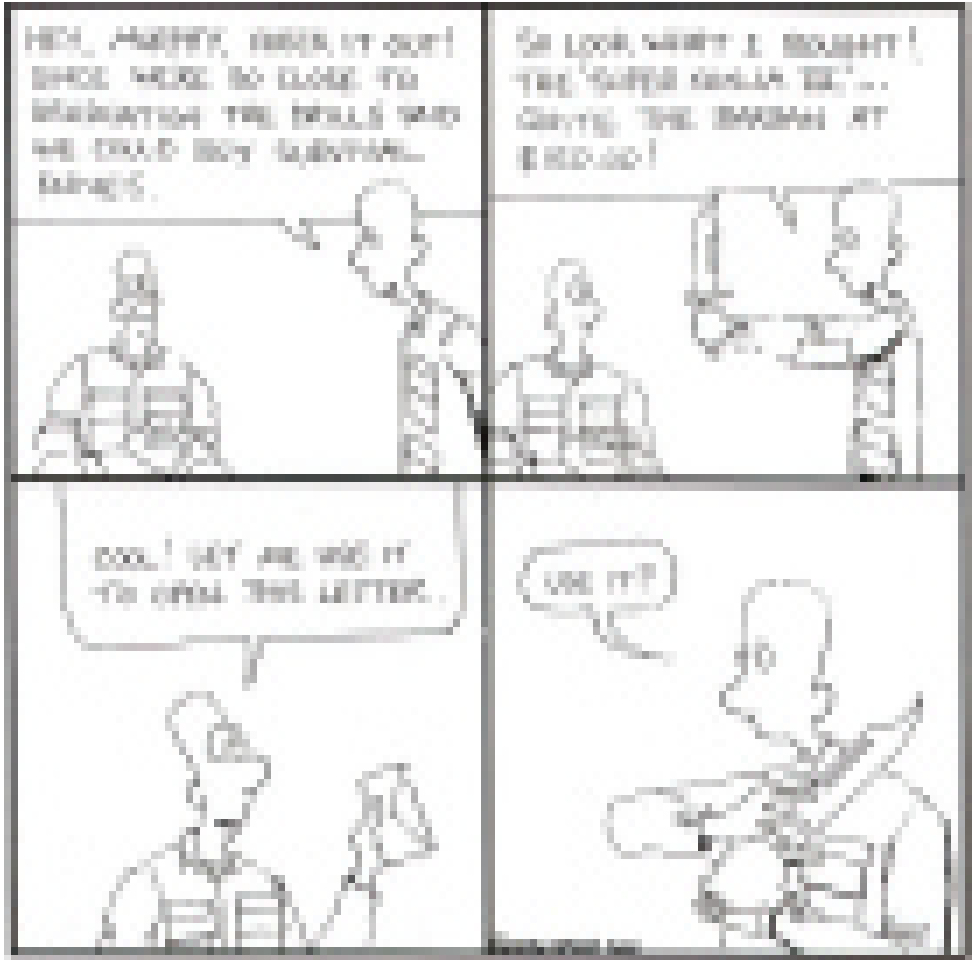

Sierra Vista Park and Leisure's Youth Center is having its second Arts and Crafts Day Sunday from 2-4 p.m. If you enjoy arts and crafts then this is the day you don't want to miss, and the best part is — it's free. Monday's craft will be making candy jewelry. Feel free to call the Y-C at 459-4377 with any questions or craft ideas that you would like to create.

Rent-a-Kid

Attention, attention! The Sierra Vista Parks and Leisure's Youth Center "Rent-a-Kid" program is on a roll. The Y-C has plenty of applications of file for young teens lloking for babysitting or odd jobs around the home. All you need to do is stop by or call teh Y-C at 459-4377 and let them know what kind of help you're looking for. The Y-C is also always looking for applications from teens. Just stop by and fill one out.

NEXT FRIDAY
New Line Cinema (Directed by: Steve Carr Starring: Ice Cube, Tamala Jones, Michael Epps, Tom “Tiny” Lister Jr., John Witherspoon, Amy Hill, Lisa Rodriguez.)
Rated R: Strong language, Drug use, Sexual content

Family Factor: Too crude for younger viewer, but teens will want to see it, if they haven’t already. Drug use is extreme and flaunted.

Ice Cube reprises his role as Craig Jones and this time takes off from the ‘hood to the suburbs to live with his uncle and cousin. Taking up where Friday left off, Craig had beat down Debo (Tom “Tiny” Lister) and Debo went to jail. It’s four years later, and Debo and his brother Tyrone are breaking out of prison and coming after Craig. Because he doesn’t want his son to get killed, Craig’s dad had him go stay in the newly developed housing area, Rancho Cucamonga, with cousin Day-Day (Michael Epps).

Once in the ‘burbs, Craig and Day-Day can’t stay out of trouble and get involved in problems with Day-Day’s ex, local drug dealers and a tax notice. Although there’s more plot to this one than the original, there’s nowhere near the humor. Mainly because Chris Tucker didn’t come back as Smokey. There’s no real comic side to play against Cube’s straight-man, and the fact that there’s more plot kills what little comedy there is to the movie.

Ice Cube has proven himself as a commendable actor and there are parts in the movie that should be genuinely funny, but by the time they arise, you don’t care. It takes too long to get anywhere. Kind of makes you wonder what they were smoking when they made this movie.

Note to DVD renters: The absolute best part about renting this movie at all was the DVD menu. They did a great job making a very unique graphic interface that lets you “tour” the Rancho Cucamonga housing area. Each area of the “housing division” is packed with features from an alternate ending, gag reels and audition tapes to the normal audio set up and scene selection. The features you get may be the same as other DVDs, but this is the most unique menu I’ve seen. If you rent this on VHS, consider it a two-and-a-half movie. On DVD, it shoots up to three-and-a-quarter because of the menu. Splitting the difference, I give the movie: Three “Just Say No!” symbols.

ing the 1930s. Michael Duncan plays seven-foot-tall hulking inmate John Coffey (“Like the drink but spelled different.”), convicted of the horrible murder of two small girls, but he seems to have a secret gift.

Edgecomb is a compassionate guard who believes that pacified inmates are peaceful inmates. He treats his charges with care, if not compassion coming down hard only when needed. When Coffey arrives, everyone is shocked at the size of the man and the supposed brutality of the crimes of which he was convicted.

Soon Edgecomb, the other guards and inmates learn that Coffey has a special power. It seems he has the power to heal certain injuries and diseases, of which Edgecomb and Edgecomb’s best friend’s wife both benefit.

Eventually, Edgecomb comes to believe Coffey’s innocence, but how can he save him from the Green Mile — the last walk to the electric chair?

First of all, this movie is LONG; 188 minutes long. Its length is reinforced by the fact that there is no subplot, no diversion, just driving and dragging singular story. Not that it’s a bad story, just very long. You’ll find yourself wishing at times they’d cut some scenes, or done something to speed up the film.

Otherwise, the movie is extremely well done. Based on a Stephen King story, the film is directed by Frank Darabout who has previous King experience having directed the epic Shawshank Redemption. Where Redemption succeeded in keeping your attention, Green Mile fails. But Mile has the same caliber performances and straightforward cinematography that made Redemption such a good film.

There are a couple of interesting twists thrown in near the end, but it’s not enough to revitalize your already drained consciousness. If the film editor had been less kind and cut a little more freely, the film would probably have rated a whole rank higher. As it is, I give the film: Three-and-three-quarter prison guards.

BOYS DON’T CRY
Fox Searchlight Pictures and The Independent Film Channel (Directed by: Kimberly Peirce Starring: Hilary Swank, Chloe Sevigny, Peter Sarsgaard, Brendon Sexton III, Alison Folland, Alicia Goranson.)
Rated R: Violence (including a brutal rape scene), Sexuality, Language, Nudity, Drug use.

Family Factor: Definitely not one for the kids. Intense subject matter, sex and the brutal rape scene make this fare for mature audiences.

Boys Don’t Cry chronicles the real life, and death, story of Teena Brandon/Brandon Teena (Hilary Swank), who was brutally raped and murdered in 1993 in Falls City, Neb. Teena, physically a female who suffered from a “sexual identity crises” posed as a boy first at her hometown in Lincoln, Neb., then at Falls City, where she was murdered.

A documentary was also made the same year as this film, and where it focused on the many different girls Brandon/Teena dated, the movie only focuses on one, Lana Tisdel (Chloe Sevigny). The movie wraps many of the different girls into their portrayal of Tisdel.

Being known too well in Lincoln to pass herself off as a boy and facing criminal auto-theft charges, Teena leaves town and finds herself in Falls City. She winds up staying and feeling as though she, as a he, belongs there.

It isn’t long before Brandon, as Brandon Teena, makes local friends and even begins dating Tisdel. Unfortunately, Tisdel has a “guardian” in John Lotter (Peter Sarsgaard). Eventually, everyone finds out about Teena.

Lotter and Nissen drive Teena out to a deserted spot and beat and rape her. She escapes their clutches, turns them in to the police and tries to leavewith Tisdel. Lotter and Nissen find them first. Teena, in reality, was staying with a 22-year-old friend and her 24-year-old boyfriend. In the movie, it was just the female friend. In both film and reality, Nissen and Lotter kill everyone in the house except Tisdel. In reality, Tom Nissen is serving three consecutive life sentences and Lotter is currently on death row.

What makes this movie so compelling is its ability to show an alternative lifestyle interspersed within small town life and pull both off believably. You don’t doubt the small town, you don’t doubt anyone’s reaction to Teena before or after her secret is discovered, and you don’t doubt the end.

Almost a documentary feel, but with enough movie gimmicks and cinematography to keep you in “movie land.” It’s a sad tragic tale, and unfortunately it’s true. It’s upsetting, and if you don’t agree with the subject matter I suggest you skip it, but because of how compelling this film is, I give it: four-and-three-quarter cowboy hats.

Showings

The following are the upcoming movies to the Cochise Theater:

Today — THE FLINTSTONES IN VIVA ROCK VEGAS: Mark Addy, Stephen Baldwin - Fred and Barney are on top of the world, and life couldn’t be better. In Bedrock, Fred ends up falling head over heels in love with Wilma, while Barney and Betty become inseparable. Together they whisk away on a BC-10 for a romantic weekend in Rock Vegas. (Innuendo and brief language.) Rated PG.

Friday June 23, Sunday June 25 and

Monday June 26 — WHERE THE HEART IS: Natalie Portman, Stockard Channing - Novalee and her “Wal-Mart Baby” become instant celebrities when she gives birth on the floor — revealing her hideaway. Novalee finally becomes part of an unconventional, makeshift family comprised of her wonderuffly eccentric new friends. (Tense thematic material, language and sexual content.) Rated PG-13.

Saturday June 24 and Thursday June 29 — BATTLEFIELD EARTH: John Travolta, Barry Pepper - It’s the year 3000 and things aren’t going well on Earth.

There are only about 35,000 human beings left on the planet. The rest were wiped out by a deadly gas spread a thousand years earlier by the fierce Psycholos who conquered the Earth as they did many other planets in the universe, so they could mine it’s mineral resources. Finally after 10 centuries of domination, Jonnie Goodboy Tyler from Colorado takes on the dreaded Psycholos. He strives to overcome the most evil creatures who ever existed. (Intense Sci-fi action.) Rated PG-13.

Tuesday June 27 and Wednesday June 28 — HELD UP: Jamie Fox, Nia

Long - Mike is having a bad day. As if it wasn’t bad enough that he gets stuck out in the middle of nowhere, he then gets dumped by his girl, Rae, and gets his vintage sports car hijacked by a 14-year-old. Things take a real turn for the worse when he stops inside the local convenience store to make a call and finds himself in the middle of a hold-up. (Language, violence, sensuality.) Rated PG-13.

— Unless otherwise indicated (i.e. 2 p.m. matinee) all movies will begin at 7 p.m. Adults $3 and children $1.50. Wednesday and Thursday shows and all matinees are 99 cents.

CYS opens innovative program

On June 28, the Family Child Care program will open the Army's first Group Home at 166 Hughes, located behind the old Children's Library. The home will be staffed with two certified FCC Providers from 5:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Mon. through Fri. This new concept is designed to combine the strengths of both an FCC home and a Child Development Center. Care is provided in a small, home-like setting while providing the staffing and socialization opportunities available in a center.

Twelve children at a time with no more than three of the children being "not capable of self-preservation" may be cared for simultaneously. This means that the majority of the children in the home must have the physical ability to evacuate on their own during an emergency without adult assistance.

Reservations for this new home may be made up to a month in advance beginning June 26, by calling 507-6772. This program requires a two-hour minimum stay with a limit of 25 hours per week. Fees will be $2.20 per hour for the first child in a family and $2.00 per hour for each additional child in the same family. Drop-ins are welcome on a space-available basis.

For more information, contact the FCC Director at 533-2495.
